Tree Information

- Once you bring your trees home, place them somewhere Cool and dark, and keep them moist.
  - Trees like to be planted at the same level as the soil, so that their first root is at the soil surface. If planted too deep, you can cause the tree to rot.
  - Trees should be watered the day they are planted. Regular watering is necessary the first year. Trees with higher water needs such as Colorado Blue Spruce, Lindens, Willow, and the Cottonwoods may require lifetime watering.
- **A drip system provides the most efficient method of watering and is easy to set up. The conservation district has drip system supplies available for purchase and can help with your drip system design.**
